It must be a subject of deep and uniersal regret, that a man so esteemed and concurred by the pious and benevolent of every denomination, should be subjected a persecution at once unmanly and unthe evening of his days, persecuted by se whose duty it should be to advocate the years that he has seen, denied the rites of hospitality! A stranger, he should have found universal courtesy and protection; a minister of the sanctuary, he should have been listened to with reverance and attention. But it is a theme too sacred for the embellishments of the fancy -too splendid for the frolics of the muse

Sainted soul, thy head is hoary, Whitened by the hand of time, As he leads thee up to glory, Far above an earthly clime.

Tho' the world regrets his traces, Stealing beauty's charms so dear, Yet to thee they add but graces, As they close thy blest career.

But tho' age and sorrow's finger, Prints thy brow with grief or care, Still one placid smile shall linger, Which delighted youth may share.

Yes! while youth to thee shall listen, E'en a sigh will rend the breast, And a tear for thee will glisten, Thus to see thyself distress'd.

Age and worth alike uniting, Long shall plead thy noble cause. And celestial aid inviting, Bear thee thro' with fresh applause.

Here, tho' bigot bate attend thee, (There's a spark, I blush to say,) Yet a mightier power shall lend thee Strength to tread thy heavenly way.

There are hearts whose warmest feeling, Long has lived for thee alone. And for thee their prayers are stealing Up to Heaven's eternal throne.

Here thy path I'd strew with roses, Thro' each scene of hope and fear, And the turf that round thee closes, Wet with Friendship's kindred tear. February, 1823.

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, The principle of intelligence in man which is said to distinguish him from other animals is called reason—a similar principle in brutes is denominated instinct .-The latter, however, in many instances, is so near to reason, that we are astonished to find it sometimes in animals surpassing the intelligence of some men. And notwithstanding what Descartes and some other philosophers have maintained, that they are mere simple automata, it would be easy to prove by the adduction of examples, that many of them possess a reasoning faculty as well as man. Dogs, elephants, horses, monkeys, &c. exhibit many evidences of a true principle of reasoning, or a kind of instinct approaching the perfection of reason. The following fact occurred some years ago. A dog. belonging to a person in Byberry, was in the habit of going every Sabbath day to meeting, where he regularly took his station under a bench, and conducted himself orderly as a faithful dog ought .- It happened one Sabbath that his master and mistress took a journey of some miles distance; the dog following them until they passed the Presbyterian Meeting in Warminster, just at the hour the people were assembling to worship .-This, it is presumed, suggested the first hint to the dog of its being meeting dayhe returned about eight miles; entered his own meeting at a late period and took his accustomed station under the bench. Another instance of a similar nature occurred some years ago in a neighbouring state .-A dog went every sabbath day regularly with his master to church: he happened once to be shut up which prevented his attendance. This he no doubt thought was a trick to prevent his going; he therefore took his own precaution to prevent his being detained the next sabbath. He even hid himself on the evening before, nor was

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, The great exertions which are made, to extend the benefits of liberal education among the poorer classes of the community, will, it is to be hoped, have a tendency with the rest of their men took to their to ameliorate the condition of the people. boats, since which they have been busy in It is, however, a matter of doubt with some getting off. This fray took place while we whether these exertions will ultimately have an effect to promote the happiness of mankind—the acquisition of knowledge, the British were preparing to bombard the say they, diminishes the happiness of the town. Such a scene of confusion I never possessor. The amateur, whose taste has was a witness to; the consternation was been refined, feels not half the pleasure in contemplating the finished works of Raby the acquirement of knowledge, it may certainly avoid much evil and misery, and at the same time possess the pleasures of sense and imagination as extensively as the brute or untutored savage.-If we review mankind upon an extensive scale; if we look at the black catalogue of crimes recorded in the history of the Gothic ages, we naturally suppose them to be the effect of the combined influence of ignorance and superstition; but the crimes of more enlightened times, might lead us to question the truth of such a conclusion-we might doubt whether the extremes of ignorance and intelligence, like those of light and darkness, are not very nearly allied; and whether the dissemination of knowledge beyond a certain point, may not be productive of as great a degree of evil as was ever ascribed to a want of it. By a writer of the history of the French Revolution it is said that "a love of letters and a passion for literature eminently characterized that period, and diffused itself over society. All the arts which contributed to elegance, taste and refinement, were most assiduously cultivated." It was under the mask of reason, intelligence and philosophy that this deluded nation committed atrocities unthought of by the ignorant Goths and Vandals who desolated the fairest portions of Europe .-Facts like this are solemn warnings-they shew us that learning and knowledge in order to become blessings to mankind must be sanctified by the lights of virtue and religion. Without the influence of these, they are too often subservient to the worst of purposes.

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

[The following extract of a letter, giving an affeeting picture of the distress concomitant to a state of war, will be no doubt interesting to some of your readers. It pourtrays some very distressing scenes, of which it is believed no record of that eventful crisis yet published, gives any account.]

Alexandria, 3d of 9mo. 1814. MY DEAR SISTER, passed in review, that I am sometimes him in the woods, lying for dead, with a to the negociation is a matter that has not ready to imagine it all a dream, until I wound which he had received, from a poil transpired. cast my eyes on this desolate town, and soned arrow, in a skirmish with the Indians. the vet smoking remains of a young and Having acquired some knowledge of surpromising city. All this was but a prelude to the misery that awaited us. While these acts were performing a detachment from their fleet was plying up the Potomac, and on the evening of the 23d, six of their ships of war got opposite the fort, about seven miles below, and a heavy cannonading began; our men in the fort fled and blew up the works, and the enemy had nothing to obstruct their way to this place, which they entered on First day, and the next morning began a scene of pillage and destruction which continued until this morning, when they began to move down the river with their ill-gotten property: I believe they would have continued here for some days, had not an extraordinary event taken place yesterday. Captain P. and people say captain R. and a captain C. came into town yesterday about 12 o'clock; they rode down on the wharf among the thickest of the British officers, seized one of them by the throat, and was in the act of drawing his sword to stab the man, when he broke away and were in meeting, which was broken up, by the cries of women and children rushing into the meeting house declaring that such, that many knew not what they said or did; I walked up home where several of my neighbours were gathered to ask

This dreadful report arose from an encampment of a large number of negros, which their masters were taking up the country to be out of groundless in all other respects. Business of every kind (except that of war) is done, and many here no doubt will be totally ruined. It is believed the enemy has taken about fifteen thousand barrels of flour, and from eight hundred to one thousand hogsheads of tobacco. This is not more than about a tenth part of the produce in this place, so that the mere oss of property would not be so much felt, but it has prostrated all kind of business, and the credit of the place is sunk.

The fleet is gone down the river and i is expected there will be heavy business at a place called the White House, where our military have stationed many heavy cannon. From the exasperated state of men's minds, I calculate there will be bloody work : the cannon are now making a dreadful thundering toward that place.

> FROM A LONDON PAPER SKETCH OF MR. FARQUHAR,

OF FONTHILL ABBEY. The negociation for the sale of Fonthill Abbey and estates, together with the library and all the splendid articles of taste and vertu, which were to have been sold by auction on the premises, was, it is said, concluded by Mr. H. Philips, of Bond-street, on Monday week, at Bath, whither he had proceeded some days before for the purpose of arranging this important business with Mr. Beckford. We understand that the timber on the estate is estimated at 100,000 pounds; that the building bas not cost so little as 400,000l.; and that since the present possessor came of age, he has laid out at least a million sterling in beautifying and embellishing his most splendid domain. There was some idea at first, it is said, of purchasing this estate for the Duke of Wellington. His Grace was down to see it efore he left town for Vienna, an leisure in order to give thee some faint idea | Charles Ross, followed him to America, upwards of three hours in the Abbey and of the deplorable situation in which we dressed in men's clothes; and after a grounds. is a man of extraordinary character and habits. His history will add another to the many instances of the accumulation of wealth from successful industry and atbanks of the Patuxent River: they bent ed unknown to him, having dyed her skin. tendant savings. Mr. Farquhar is a native of Aberdeen, and went out early in life to India, where he was employed for some time in a subordinate situation in the medical department. His mind was ever ocpanying her she was immediately married cupied in study, and chemical research was his favourite pursuit; from its practical apgunpowder in the interior, and Mr. Farquhar was selected to give his assistance.-By degrees he got the management of the concern, and finally became the sole contractor to the government. In this way wealth and distinction rapidly poured in upon him, and he obtained the particular favour and confidence of the late Warren Hastings. In Bengal, he was remarkable for the closeness of his application, unabating perseverance, and extraordinary mental vigour, and also for the same habits of penuriousness which he still adheres to. After years of labour, he came from India with a fortune estimated at half Peculiar must be the composition of that a million of money, the principal part of which was invested, through the late Mr. tions; he must be indefatigable in business, Coutts, in the funds at the rate of 55% on to fit him for the labours of his station, and Three per cent Consols. Fart of his wealth was devoted to the purchase of estates, but the great bulk was invested in stock, and suffered to increase, on the principles of compound interest .-Every half year he regularly draws his dividends, his mercantile profits, and his rents, and purchases in the funds. In this manner his wealth has accumulated. Mr. Farguhar is deeply read in ancient and modern literature; his mind is one of extraordinary vigour and originality; his conversation of a superior order, impressive and animated on every subject. His sentiments are liberal and strangely contrasted with his habits. His avarice may be considered as a disease which he cannot control. His religious opinions are peculiar, and seem to be influenced by an admiration of the purity of the lives and moral principles of the Bramins. It is said that he offered to appropriate 100,000L to found a college in Aberdeen, on the most enlarged plan of education, with a reservation on points of religion, to which, however, the sanction of the Legislature could not be procured, and the plan was dropped.

Mr. Farquhar is still in single blessedness. Those, who are not well acquainted with Mr. Farguhar, consider him as a sordid miser, who has scraped money together by mere labour and saving; but the few with whom he associates recognise a powerful and enterprising mind, a cultivated and discerning taste, and an intellectual refinement, totally opposite to that pengry, which he seems to have at first imposed on himself as a duty, but which habit has made second nature. He is about 65 years of age, diminutive in person, and by no means prepossessing in appearance; his dress has all the qualities of the antique to recommend it; and his domestic expenditure, until the last year, has not exceeded 2001. a year, although his possessions, money in the funds, and capital in trade, is said to amount to a million and a half.

Female Breach of Trust -John Bowler, of Brandowine Hundred, state of Delaware, while on his re ura from the Philadelphia market, last week. was met by a young woman, apparently about sixteen years of age, riding a very gay young horse. She enquired if the horse he drove in his cart was perfectly gentle; observing that she was the only child of her father; that he was old, and she had to support him by trading about; that she had that day left home at his request, to trade the one she was on for a steadier one; and that her horse had become quite unmanageable. The young man told her that his was perfectly gentle, and that if she would go home with him, and his father should be pleased with the offer, he had no doubt he would exchange with her. To this she readily consented and remained at the house all night, and in the morning, whilst she was again urging the trade, and they were conversing about t, who should drive up but the owner of the horse, in quest of him. It appeared she had been living with him a few days, and borrowed the horse un der pretence of going after her cluthes. She had travelled 160 miles before she was overtaken.

The ship Acasta, Capt. Griswold, arrived at N. The Duke of Wellington was to leave Verona on the 30th of November. One account states that the Ministers of the allied powers were to re-assemble at Paris to discuss he affairs of Spain. The accounts of the differences that had crisen between the Regency of Algiers and the United States, which we noticed some mouths ago, had reached London by the way of Brussels. Our Consul is stated to have drawn up an account of the insult he had received, caused it to be signed by the several European Consuls, and embarked the next day for Mahon.

The Russian Ambassador is said to have arrived at Paris.

Winter set in at St. Petersburgh about the mid dle of November, and the frost was so severe, that the communication with Cronstadt was interrupted, and the great bridge over the Neva removed. Ireland is represented to be still in a disturbed state: dwelling houses plundered; corn burnt; and belpless females murdered.

A steam vessel is about to be established, to ply regularly between Portsmouth, in England, and Bitboa, in Spain by means of which, excepting the winter season, a regular weekly communication may be kept up between Madrid and London, and the traveller pass from one country to the other in the short space of four days. The distance by sea is stated to be no greater than between London and Edinburgh, and with very little departure from the direct line, the packet may touch at Guernsev and Brest.

The tread mill had been introduced into Scotland by the High Court of Justiciary. The annual produce of grain throughout Great Britain is reckaned at fifty millions of quarters; out of those five millions are paid in Tithes; eight midions are expended in Seed; twenty-two millions remain to the farmers, and fifteen millions for Market.

A most dreadful gale passed over Liverpool on the night of the 5th of December, and the following morning. Those who have resided in the West hidies, declare that the storm most forcibly reminded them of one of those hurricanes which are seldom experienced but in tropical climates. The most terrible and overwhelming gusts were succeeded by intervals of deceitful calmness, which constantly betrayed the terrified listener into a hope that the gale was beginning to abate. The damage suffered by the shipping in the port, and property on shore, is incalculable. A number of lives were lost.

At the Holywell Hunt meeting in England, Sit I. Mostyn refused 800 guineas for a hunter four years old, and five hundred for another two years old.

Christian Slavery .- The following is an extract of a letter from Tunis, dated Oct. 21: On the 17th inst, arrived here the Sardinian brig Geacio, Captain Antonia Luiza Niale, from Smyrna, in 20 days, with soldiers; also the Maltese brig Due Cugini, Captaio Chiassuro, from Constantinople and Smyrna-from the latter place in 20 days, with silk manufactures, &c .-Both these vessel bring a number of unfortunate Greek slaves! principally young girls, destined as presents to the Bardo. and boys, all under 10 years of age, who have been circumcised. What appears most extraordinary is, that this nefarious traffic in christian blood is not only carried on under the flags of the Holy Alliance. but the two vessels in question were actually escorted from Smyrna to Cape Passare by an Austrian ship of war.

THE CREEKS - The following is an extract of a letter from a commercial house in Smyrna, to the editors of the New York Commercial Advertiser, dated Nov. 17, 1822:

" Trade has been for three or four weeks past, quite brisk, which, together with the perfect good order which now reigns in our city, makes us, in a measure, forget our past miseries, and the facility with which they may be renewed. The Greek cause has gained much, and I think, the question of their independence nearly established. The Morea, and most of the Islands in the Archipelago, will most probably, funder some conditions) remain to them. How the Grand Sultan will reconcile this to his turbulent Janissaries, remains to be seen. We are anxious to know the result of the Congress at Verona, which will probably decide the fate of this country. It appears to me, that in the present state of Europe, peace on any terms, and crowned head on the continent: with that I they may hope to bring mankind back to the way of thinking they had 50 years ago; but I am afraid it all will not de. Sierra Leone papers (no dates mentioned) have been received at the office of the Boston Centinel, via St. Jago. The British cruisers had been very active and successful in suppressing the slave trade, but had not been seconded in their efforts by the French croisers, who were restricted by their instructions. Weckly Compendium. FOREIGN.

Firkins of butter have been sold at Montreal, which, after penetrating two inches of its surface, were found to contain a vile mixture fit only for the use of soap boilers and tallow chandlers.

Juvenile Indiscretion .- A gentleman, having lived too long in a state of unblessed celibacy, and a lady who thought she had been too long in wedlock, whose united ages draw near to the verge of one hundred years, lately eloped from Montreal, and made for the United States-taking as many of the moveables of the deserted husband as they could well carry.

Robbers Detected .- A gang of robbers, which had carried on its depredations for some time at Montreal, has been detected and committed to prison; and a considerable part of the booty recovered. Two men who were to have been executed on the 11th ult. were respited until the S1st.

Upon the arrival of Mr. Poinsett at the city of Mexico, he was informed that a number of the followers of Gen. Long, in his expedition against the province of Texas, were in prison in that place. He went immediately to see them, and feeling a lively sympathy for their deplorable situation, interceded with the Emperor for their release, and they were, at his instance, sent to Tampico, and put on board the John Adams. They were 39 in number, French, English, Americans, and of other nations. Being very destitute of means, and wretchedly clad, the officers of the John Adams, with a liberality highly creditable, raised a subscription and furnished them with comfortable apparel. Upon the arrival of the ship at Havana, eighteen of these unfortunate men, who had been bred to a seafaring life, left her, having obtained employment on board of American and other vessels in that port The remaining 21 have arrived at Norfolk, in the John Adams.

> Sword of Prince Charles Edward Stuart. In the Kingston Chronicle of the 17th ult. the editor states that he has been favored with a sight of this swonn which independently of its history bears unequivocal marks, that it was originally designed for, and was once the property of this Royal personage. The sword is about four feet in length, of German manufacture; the hilt is surrounded with a chain of the purest gold, and on that part near the hilt is engraved on one side along the blade, the words " rive le Roy," in large characters; on the other the royal arms of France, three four de lie, within a shield surmounted by a crown bearing also three flow de lis. On both sides are engraved the word Capatiers' also in large charac ters immediately under the arms on each side, below which a burning heart is placed, and nearest to the hilt the word Sohlingen.

REVOLUTION IN MEXICO.

By the arrival of the John Adams, at Norfolk, (Va) the following information has been received relative to the affairs of Mexico :- About the latter end of October, the Congress at Mexico was violently dissolved by an Imperial mandate com-municated by one of Rurbide's generals, who in-formed the President of that body, that if they did not disperse in ten menutes he had orders to extuguese brig, of 250 tons and 270 staves.—

On the 10th of November, his Imperial Majesty left the capital and proceeded to Xalapa, with the avowed object of treating with Lemour, the commandant of San Juan de Ulloa. Commissioners were appointed by the parties, who met in Vera Cruz-nothing, however was done. The Governor of Vera Cruz, Santa Ana was hastily summoned to Xalapa by the Emperor, and another officer appointed to that command. This conduct roused Santa Aoa's pa-triotism, he returned suddenly to Vera Cruz, of Congress, requires only the signature of the President to become a law. tyrant and usurper Manifestoes were published on both sides, and hostilities commenced. Santa Ana marched against the Imperialists and defeated them, making between 4 and 500 prisoners But on the 20th Dec. he was surprised and defeated with great loss. On the 22d he returned to Vera Cruz with the remnant of his forces. He had been previously joined by Gen Victoria Gaudaloupe, one of the most virtuous and most successful of the revolutionary generals, who had been for some time concealed in the mountains of the province of Vera Cruz, where he had fled from the persecutions of Iturbide. It was report. ed at Havanna that two distinguished officers of the revolution, Guerrero and Bravo, had d clared against the Emperor, and were in arms in the province of Puebla. Commotions had taken place in Campeche, Guatimala and Oaxaca, and great discontent had been excited by the violant d ssolution of the Congress, and by the fear that Iturbide would establish, or rather retain the absolute power-for they generally considered the present Junta as the mere organ of his will, with not so much power as the Senate of St. Petersburgh We further learn, that the great mass of the people of Mexico are in favour of a republican system of government, but that Iturbide and his adherents, including the Junta, are for absolute despotism. Gen. Wilkinson was still in Mexico. prosecuting certain claims of merchants of New Orleans with every paospect of success. It was expected that the claims would be liquidated by grants of land. Gen. W. lived retired, took up part whatever in the affairs of the country, and was held in very high esteem. The report which stated that he was deriving great emolument from some official employment under the government of Iturbide, is, we are assured, utterly void of truth; the General never having accepted any appointment or agency for any foreign power during his absence from the United States.

DISTRESSING CALAMITY.

A very melancholy accident occurred on the 12th ult in the county of Westmoreland, Va. Upon the morning of that day Mrs. Phobe Layook, scarcely 20 years of age, in the full glow of leath, and youth and beauty, with her two childen and maid; one of the children an infant, the ther but little more; in a gig accompanied by ber husband on horseback, left her father's house to attend meeting and visit a relation. The mildness of the morning had allured them to a considesable distance from home; but to which, although the evening became cold and tempestuous, they were determined to return; and nearly had they succeeded in doing so, when the husband, uling a few yards before, was alarmed by a sudden and appalling crash behind him; wheeling instantly round, he exclaimed to his wife "take care!" She obeyed the injunction by promptly checking her horse; but it was too late, for in a moment, the top of a decayed and lofty hickory tree, snapped of by the fury of the storm, preci-pitaled itself with irresistible force and violence rectly upon the carriage! The almost distracted hustand few to the spot; the horse in the harness lay dead and motionless, whilst at the same time his beart was somewhat revived by the cries of his children and servant; they were immedistely relieved, and had sustained little injury; but his tife! he calls upon her by name; and reeves no answer; with the energy of desperation strives to dash the ponderous and overwhelming fragment; it is beyond his strength; he looks

The escape of the little children and servant wis almost miraculous. The bottom, or foot of he carriage by some preceding fragment as it would seem, was beaten out; they were precipi-ted through; and the axle, upon which the tree flerrards principally rested, became, as if the and Providence, the means of their preservation.

From the Western Press, Jan. 21. Singular Phenomenon .- On Sunday the 12th instant, while a congregation of methodists was performing their quarterly devotion, a singular circumstance took place at the house of worship. About four hundred of the congregation were assembled in the court house at Franklin, Pennsylvania, when a sudden eruption took place in the earth on which the house stands which sunk it about four inches and split the walls from top to bottom. Those who occupied the upper chambers, supposed from the noise, that the lower part of the house was on fire, and those below imagined that the noise emanated from fire above; they, however discovered their error, and fearing that something of a more serious nature was about to befal them, began to rush out of the house through the door and windows We understand that a women made her escape through the window with a child in each arm; but, the quick succession of others, gave her no time to escape from the very much bruised.

THE PHILADELPHIA RECORDER. Proposals have been issued, and a large num per of subscribers already obtained, for the publication of a weekly newspaper, by S. Potter & Co. to be entitled " The Philadelphia Recorder," the object of which will be the diffusion of religious intelligence These gentlemen have received the most flattering assurances from the Clergy of the Episcopal Church, of their liberal intentions for the promotion of the design embraced in the proposals; and we have reason to believe that the typographical accuracy and neatness of the paper will prove highly satisfactory to its patrons The Recorder will be published every Saturday morn ng, on a super royal paper, of good quality, a three dollars per annum, payable in advance .-The first number will be issued the first Saturday in April. Subscription papers are left at the principal Book-stores in this city.

The Mayor of Philadelphia has issued his proclamation, offering a reward of three hundred dollars " for the detection and prosecution to conviction of any incendiary or incendiaries who may have caused any of the late fires, or who may have been concerned in any of the late attempts to set fire to buildings within the city." The security of our homes and property are dependant on the prudent and energetic measures which have been adopted by the chief magistrate; and we are happy to has to alarm the family, and induce a be- add that where promptitude and vigour of lef buthe was mad. > Union Canal .- Mr. Canvass White, of New-York, has been selected to conduct the vigorous efforts which are about to be made for the completion of the Union Canal. Mr. White has been engaged as engineer to several enterprizes of the same kind, which have succeeded to admiration. The one which he executed at the Little Falls of the Mohawk, is considered as superior in boldness of design, and difficulty of execution to any other on the whole route from Lake Erie to the Hudson.

The discussion of the bill for the revision of the present tariff of duties on foreign goods imported, has been taken up in the House of Representatives of the United States, under such circumstances as to induce a belief that there is a fixed determination to come to some determination upon it. There will not be much time to spare for debate, as Congress must close its session previous to the 4th of next month, and there is yet much important business before them, not

The Brewers of the city and county of Philadelphia, in conjunction with the managers of the Farmers' Brewery, have agreed to reduce the price of Malt Liquors one dollar in the barrel. Execution .- On Friday next, according to the warrant issued by the Governor of the commonwealth, the ill-fated Gross suffers the penalty of the law for the murder of Keziah Stow. It will be an awful and forbidding spectacle, unfit for the visions Mansfield, makes either hypocrites of frail mortality to feed its curious and busy appetite upon-but, doubtless, many, very many, will hasten to the scaffold to behold the last struggles of this wretched man, whose folly will have drawn him, step by step, to the most degrading and ignominious death. , It will be a gloomy and imwhich continues much swelled, enhelpless. There is reason to believe, sibility, fashioned after the model of Christier, that all helpless and charity, would say to pressive day to others-who do not hold with sanguinary punishments-their senet, that all will ultimately be well— tian meekness and charity, would say t rent of human hopes and felicity. We learn that the condemned culprit has exhibited signs of sincere repentance-we wish it may be so, for we would not have an unrepenting sinner hurried before the throne of Grace, with all his accumulated errors ready to confront him at the mercy seat, and cheat his soul of rest hereafter. Parents would do well to have an eye to their children on the day of executionthey should not be suffered to leave their homes-many accidents may thereby be prevented.

Beware .- A robbery was committed on Monday last, by a decent looking man, at the Buck tavern, in Second street. While the family were at dinner, he being left alone in the bar-room, took down a plaid outer side until she and her children were I cloak which he found hanging there, wrapped himself up in it, and decamped. After tected, the stolen property recovered, and he sent to prison.

POWDER MILL EXPLOSION.

The Pounding Mill attached to the Powder Establishment of Mr. Garesche, on the Brandywine, near Wilmington, (Del.) blew up on Thursday morning last about 11 o'clock. There were 22 men working in the mill at the time, of whom 7 are dead, 6 badly wounded, and some slightly .-Among the killed, are Caleb Brown, and John Peter and his two sons. It is stated to have been occasioned by the breaking of a bolt in the pressing room, which was noticed by one of the workmen, but not in time to give the alarm to those in the pounding mill.

Capt. Treadwell, of the schr. Plato, arrived at New-York, from St. Michaels, informs that the new Constitution of Portugal was adopted at that place about the 50th Dec. There was a splendid illumination on the occasion-the effigy of the king was burnt, and the property of his adherents confiscated.

FROM HARRISBURG. Extract of a letter to the Editor of the Franklin

Gazette, dated Harrisburg, Jan. 28. "Mr. Groves offered in Senate to-day a esolution authorising the appointment of a committee to inquire into the expediency of altering or amending the law of last session regulating congressional districts, which was laid on the table. The bill incorporating " the Farmers' Brewing Company" was again before the senate in committee of the whole, Mr. R. Smith in the chair; and after a debate of considerable length, in which the bill was opposed by Mr. Wurts, Mr. Duncan, and Mr. W. R. Smith, and supported by general Barnard, the committee rose and reported it with sundry amendments.

It is understood that the bill to alter the charter of St. Mary's Church will be considered in Senate to-morrow; and, as you may well suppose, the interest excited by this bill will necessarily bring a great number of people to hear the able discussion that must take place."

The following Appointments have been made by the President of the United States, with the advice and consent of the Senate, viz.

ANDREW JACKSON, of Tennessee, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Government of Mexico. JOHN MASON, jun. to be Secretary of Legation to the same Government. CESAR A. RODNEY, of Delaware, to be Minister Plenipotentiary to the Government of Buenos

POSTSCRIPT.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 31. Gale at Laguira.—We learn by the arrival of he Matteawan, capt. Coffin, 20 days from Curracoa, that a disastrous gale occurred at Laguira on the 22d uit, when the following vessels were ost, as well as a number of lives :

Bug Agnes, Smith; schrs. Endymion, Hathaway, and Cherub, Pierce, of New York; Dauntless, Buckley, of Baitimore, (one man, the cook, lost;) La Reine, of Philadelphia, all hands lost, except captain Hunt; brig West Indian, Phillips, of do. captain's son lost; ship Caravan, of Providence; schr. Sarah, Harris, of Ipswich; all hands lost. Also two French brigs; two prize brigs; English brig Princess Charlotte, the captain and mate killed; brig Leda, of London; brig Valorous and schr Columbia, of St. Thomas. Two Colombian schrs toundered at their anchors, and all hands perished. The United States frigate Congress was in the Roads but rode out the gale with the loss of two anchors. She was at Curracoa when the Mattea-

In conversation with an untiligent gentleman, bassenger in the Bingham, we learn that the French troops, 40,000 in number had actually marched towards the confine of Spain; but that the government had a sudden recantation of the decree, sent a courier after them to order them to halt. Whether the French troops had or had not passed the Pyrencean bound of liberty and slavey, our informant could not tell. The general impression in France was that Peace would, at least for the present, commue between the two countries. The funds had risen from 80 80c to 89f 50c a tolerably strong sign, it not of the continuance of peace, at least of the public opinion on the subect. Insurances at Lloyd's, on French vessels, were obtained at 10 per cent, to and from any a search of several hours, the thief was de- port, even Spanish possessions; in Havre and Paris they asked 30 per cent, but this only on vessels destined to Havana, Mexico, &c .- there being much dread of pirates. Our informant adds, Insurances in England were effected only on the condition that if captured by an English bess t of war, the Insurer should not be liable. This proviso has comething in its character and meaning which goes to shew that the duration of peace was regarded as doubtful by English speculators.

Washington, in " The Capture of Major Andre," and left the theatre well.

" The Manager in Distress !"- Spiller, the comedian, chose this entertainment for his benefit n Richmond, the last night of performance, and no doubt exerted himself to the best of his ability, to depict the distresses of mimic manager. The next morning, however, a real distress awaited the manager, not quite so an uing as the former -some rogue broke open the office of the theatre, and robbed the desk of the whole profits of the preceding night, in consequence of which, the heatre was re-opened for one night more-to reenact with rather more of reality, the Manager in

On Moore's favorite Song of the Woodpecker. knew by the post that so gaily display'd The sign of a bear, that a tavern was near; And said if a cask of good gin was e'er made, The man that was thirsty might wish for it here. It was noon, and in mud puddles scattered around,

In silence repos'd the voluptuous hog-Every leaf was at rest, and I heard not a sound, Save the Innkeeper flogging a mischievous dog And here in this little lone spot I exclaim'd

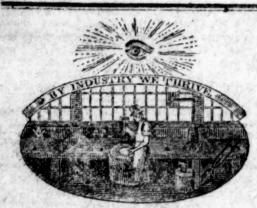

With a pipe in my mouth and a drep in my eye With a cask of good liquor, old rve coffee nam'd, How blest could I live, and how calm could I lie; By the side of you oak, where an old toper sips His glass of gir toddy how sweet to recline, And to know that the liquor I rais'd to my lips, Had never been tasted by any but mine.

SECRET IN CATECHISM. A clergyman catechising the youths of his parish, put the first question from the catechism of Heidelberg to a girl-" What is your only conso-lation in life and in death?" Distress in the West.

MUCH distress exists in this City-originating solely from the teeth; owing, in a great degree, to the manner in which the business of the Dentist has been conducted. If information had been publicly given, many of the most distressing cases might have been prevented-timely application would have been made-the teeth would have been properly treated, and many persons who now are almost destitute of teeth, would still enjoy them. But it has been so unfashionable to advertise, that no dentist of any celebrity would risk his popularity by giving publicity to information so much required. But these injurious prejudices have been partially dissipated, and Williams now has the satisfaction of seeing advertisements and public information much more respected, and, he lopes, in a few years, the complaints and lamen. tations which are now heard so frequently, will
